

Insvaganza 2018 reloaded: Featured the inaugural Youth run of Inspiria

Siliguri, March 12: The second edition of Insvaganza, the annual cultural fest of Inspiria Knowledge Campus was held on 9th and 10th March 2018 respectively. Arguably the biggest Socio-cultural fest of the region comprised of 32 events spread across two days, 25 colleges participating from Siliguri and adjacent areas and partnered by well known sponsors across the city. The main feature of the event was Madhurima Basu, bollywood playback singer. The audience experienced an astounding musical performance from the celebrity singer. It also featured the first edition of the Youth - run of North Bengal on 10th March 2018. The race category included 5 kms and 10kms respectively. The much awaited event was flagged off by Dr. P. D. Bhutia, a renowned surgeon from Siliguri. There were winners' trophies for the respective categories along with participation certificates, medals and specially designed customized t-shirts for all. A noble initiative from Inspiria to encourage and inculcate the benefit of a sound health. Insvaganza is one of the most happening and innovative students' fest in the entire north-eastern region. Planned, organized and put forward as a students' initiative, it is a grand platform for budding talents in the field of music, art, literature, business innovation challenges, dance and other creative forms. Performers from all over North Bengal can showcase their skills and creativity in a plethora of high-energy competitive events spanned over two days, backed by the Inspirian spirit of innovation and creativity.

Delhi-based rock band The Local Train and local Nepali rock band Arogya play to thousands in Gangtok, with Red Bull Music Presents The Local Train and Arogya

Gangtok, Mar 12 : On Sunday evening, two rock bands took the stage at Sikkim Manipal University of Technology, Gangtok, for Red Bull Music Presents The Local Train and Arogya, and played to over two and a half thousand fans at the college festival, Kaalrav. Kicking things off were Arogya, a Nepali rock band who have been around for close to four years. The band released its debut, self-titled album in 2015, which was very well received across the country, as well as in Nepal and Bhutan. Since then, they have played at festivals such as Ziro Festival, Orange Festival, Chitwan Music Fiesta, Awaaz Let's Be Together, and Sikkim Winter Carnival, along with regular shows on the college circuit. The band is scheduled to release their sophomore album, Arogya II, soon, and debuted a video, 'Astitwa', from the album in February this year, which they performed on the night, along with a number of tracks from their first album. The hugely popular Hindi rock band The Local Train followed, and took the stage to a massive cheer from the crowd. Formed in Chandigarh in 2011, the band has since moved to Delhi, garnered a loyal fan base, and become known for their explosive live sets and edgy music videos. They released their debut album, AalasKaPedh, to much acclaim in September 2015, and have since become a household name at college festivals across the country. In January this year, the band released their much-awaited sophomore album, Vaaqif, and on Sunday night, they treated the crowd to a number of tracks from it, along with some of their most popular older ones, including 'Aaoge Tum Kabhi' and 'Choo Lo'.
